- Be aware of your physical condition, and look after your own health
Be sure to eat and sleep adequately, and maintain your health. In addition, taking your temperature, monitoring your respiratory conditions and recording them are effective as well.
- Be thorough with washing hands, cough etiquette, disinfection, and wearing a mask when going outdoors.
In addition to washing hands and cough etiquette in everyday life, when using shared spaces, be thorough with disinfecting before/after use and wearing masks

- Refrain from unessential and unurgent outings, in particular, holding club activities, excursions, welcome/farewell parties, etc., taking part in events where an unspecified large number of people will gather, and travelling abroad.

Environments where you are in a closed space and talk at a close distance with many people have the risk of spreading infections even without coughing, sneezing, etc.

- Make appropriate decisions based on correct information

Please put in the effort, as a student of Nagoya University, to get correct information and proper understanding, and avoid thoughtless behavior from rumors and assumptions.
